The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The recited value of a dielectric breakdown strength is indefinite absent a particular method used since such value is dependent on a thickness of a sample, for example (the thicker the sample, the higher the value).

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Abolins (US 4,692,490) in view of Takekoshi et al (US 5,707,439 or 5,530,052).

Abolins teaches a method of making a thin molded article ($L/t \geq 83$) from a composition comprising polyphenylene oxide, rubber modified high impact polystyrene resin (HIPS and it is also used in the invention, table 1 and filler. Molding at 170°F taught at col. 7, lines 10-11 would meet the instant step of treatment recited in claim 3.

The instant invention further recites a maximum flow length of a mold, tensile modulus, dielectric breakdown strength and at least one organic onium treated clay over Abolins. However, the example of said table 1 would have the instant tensile modulus and dielectric breakdown strength, and applicant failed to show otherwise.

Furthermore, the use of a mold having a mold gate in the middle in said example of said table 1 would have been obvious since a composition travels 19.5 inches. Abolins teaches employing mineral fillers such as clay at col. 6, lines 36-37.

Takekoshi et al teach the use of organic agent (onium) treated clay in polymeric composition in order to obtain improved mechanical properties in examples and at col. 2, lines 62-67 of US'439 and in examples and at col. 4, lines 59-67 of US'052.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time of invention to utilize the organic agent (onium) treated clay taught by Takekoshi et al in the example of said table 1 of Abolins in order to improve thermal conductivity since Abolins teaches employing mineral fillers such as clay and since the use of organic agent (onium) treated clay in polymeric composition in order to obtain improved mechanical properties is well known as evidenced by Takekoshi et al absent showing otherwise.
